About the Conference

In an increasingly interconnected yet complex world, diplomacy today extends beyond political negotiations and economic agreements to embrace culture, heritage, and shared civilizational values. Against this backdrop, the theme “Global Diplomacy and Regional Cooperation: India–Nepal Partnership in Buddhist Heritage” holds profound contemporary relevance. The enduring Buddhist legacy shared by India and Nepal offers not only a historical bond but also a meaningful framework for fostering dialogue, peace, and cooperation at regional and global levels.

India and Nepal are uniquely connected through the life and teachings of Lord Buddha, whose message of compassion, non-violence, and wisdom continues to inspire humanity across borders and generations. Lumbini, the birthplace of the Buddha in Nepal, and the sacred sites of Bodh Gaya, Sarnath, and Kushinagar in India together form a spiritual continuum that transcends national boundaries. This shared heritage has emerged as a powerful instrument of cultural diplomacy, strengthening bilateral relations while contributing to regional integration and global outreach.

This international conference provides a timely platform to explore how Buddhist heritage can serve as a bridge between nations, promoting people-to-people connections, academic collaboration, sustainable tourism, and intercultural understanding. By bringing together scholars, policymakers, diplomats, practitioners, and cultural experts from across the world, the conference seeks to examine the role of heritage diplomacy in addressing contemporary global challenges and enhancing regional cooperation.

Through thoughtful deliberations and interdisciplinary dialogue, this gathering aims to highlight best practices, share insights, and chart future pathways for deepening the India–Nepal partnership in Buddhist heritage. More broadly, it aspires to reaffirm the relevance of Buddhist values in shaping a more peaceful, inclusive, and cooperative international order.
